

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

When a database of a database memory of a server is updated by a distributed data processing process performed by clients on an object to be controlled, a replication trigger generator generates a replication trigger. Based on the replication trigger, an updating information transfer unit transfers updating information to another server. A database updating processor of the server which has received the updating information updates the database stored in the database memory.